REALTY SALES FEWER BUT BULK IS GREATER

Loans Increase Nearly $300,000 Over Preceding Week.

Although there were five less sales reported during the last six days than in the preceding week, realty trading in Washington improved in quality during the third week of March, when 128 transactions, involving 248 lots and parcels of real estate, were recorded. An increase of nearly $300,000 was reported in the loans of the week.

The northwest section sustained a boom which placed it in the front rank of the week's selling, with 78 lots. The suburbs were a close second with 48 parcels conveyed. There were 55 lots sold in the near-by district, 28 in the southwest, and sixteen in the northeast.

Joseph J. Moebis figured in the largest financial transaction of the week, when he secured a loan of $25,000 on the Arlington Apartments, which he has recently completed on Vermont avenue.

May Build Apartment.

He also purchased two lots near Nineteenth and L streets northwest from John T. Crowley and Mary E. Davis for $18,500 and $15,500 respectively. Mr. Moebis placed a loan of $40,000 on the combined frontage. It is expected that he will erect an apartment on the site.

Land near the new Department of the Interior building was acquired during the week by John E. McShell, who bought the corner at Eighteenth and E streets northwest from Jacob Cohen for $10,657. Mr. Mitchell purchased another lot in that vicinity from Harry G. Laycock, but the price was not made public.

The feature of the week's trading in the downtown business property was the purchase by James O'Donnell, of the property at the southeast corner of Seventh and G streets, occupied for many years by Schwing & Clark as a restaurant. The price paid was $55,100. Mr. O'Donnell has not announced his plans concerning the purchase.

Theater Plans Unconfirmed.

Although it is stated that Harry Crandall will invest $500,000 in the purchase and improvement of the site near Tenth and F streets for his new motion picture theater, the deeds have not yet been recorded.

The building at the southeast corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Thirteenth street northwest is being razed to make way for a four-story auto salesroom and service station to be erected for occupancy by the Auto Car Company.

The residence at 154 Massachusetts avenue northwest has been bought by James A. Drain from the estate of Margaret Leech for a consideration reported to have been $30,000. The transaction was negotiated by Story & Cobb.

A home building operation, involving 26 houses, is being completed at Second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast by Phillips & Sager.

WOMEN 'ROOKIES' TO JOIN NAVY RESERVE

Come in Carriages, Autos, and Afoot to Offer Services.

Those "peace-at-any-price" pacifists would soon learn how empty the appeal of their argument is to patriotic Washington women by standing for ten minutes at the corner of Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast and watching the continual flow of women in all walks of life who pass into the old Naval Hospital to offer their services to Uncle Sam as members of the naval reserve.

All day yesterday the telephones in the offices were ringing. Automobiles rolled to the door, and women prominent in Capital society, their application to help out in a material way when war is declared. Others came on foot—women with families—but all animated by the same spirit of patriotism that has animated all true Americans in every great national crisis.

Not a Mere Fad.

The women are not looking for publicity nor are they taking up the work as a fad. They are earnest and determined to do their utmost should the country need them.

More than forty application blanks were filled out. As many more were taken home for a perusal. The women, under which the signers officially become a unit in the great army of national defense. Many more women were sent to the navy physicians for the physical examination they must pass before they can be accepted for the work which the government requires. There were more than 200 requests by telephone for information as the necessary routine required for acceptance.

All in all, it was a very busy day that the officers in at the recruiting office. When it closed there were a number of women accepted as women yeomen in the navy reserve and a number of others are ready to be sworn.

Don't Want Names Printed.

In conformance with the wishes of the applicants, the names of the new appointees will be withheld by the Navy Department, since the majority declared that they did not desire publicity nor exploitation of their patriotism.

One of the women applicants became indignant at the mention of compensation from the government. "The very idea of my taking money for this," she said, "I should not even be ready to help and I want no pay for it."

Nevertheless the women enter the service of the government at a salary of $33 a month and subsistence of $12.5 a day. Promotion to second-class yeoman at $55.50 and the same advancement will be given the women when qualified. Vacancies exist in the Bureau of Navigation and in departments of the Navy Yard which will be available for women.

Mrs. M. Howard Russell, the first woman to be appointed began work yesterday in the office of the paymaster-general. Miss Ella S. Moulton, the second woman accepted, was also assigned to this division.

Plan to Offer Sons.

The women at the Naval Hospital were not the only ones, however, to bring the personnel up to 100 per cent war strength. More than a score of mothers called at the Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest recruiting station and sought information about navy life with a view to offering their sons for service. In the history of recruiting for the army and navy since the war women displayed such a lively interest and a number promised to bring their sons around and enlist them for active service.

Two weather-beaten old "vets," each past the three score mark, were among the applicants for enlistment yesterday and were genuinely disappointed when told they were too old for the service. Encouraged to join the "Home Guards," which are being formed throughout the country. Only men between the ages of 17 and 30 are being accepted.

There were three enlistments at the Ninth street office yesterday, but more than a score of applications were filed out and the number seeking information was constant until the station closed at 11 o'clock last night.

Numerous applications from young men between 17 and 20 who want to become aviators in the navy were received. It seems certain that if the international crisis develops into a declaration of war the navy will be able to recruit a corps of aviators in a very brief time.

No notification has yet been received of the official order of Secretary Daniels authorizing special enlistment for the period of actual warfare but when this is received and such enlistments are taken, the navy recruits will be much livelier. The majority of those who apply want to be assured of active service.

HE DEMANDS ONLY $1,000 TO BE HEMPEL'S HUSBAND

Special to The Washington Herald.

Denver, March 24.—"Pay money for diamonds," declared Frieda Hempel, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, in a recent interview, "so why should I not pay money for the most precious of jewels, a good husband? The husband I buy must be an American. To buy a foreigner as a husband is the throwing of money away."

And now comes a man who lives in Peckham, somewhere in Colorado, who offers Frieda his heart and hand. In a letter to the "Rocky Mountain News" he says:

"I see in your paper that a lady by the name of Hempel wants to get married. I don't guess no one would call me handsome, but I ain't bad looking. Being strong and healthy, being 6 feet 4 in my stocking feet and weighing 180. I am an American. I got also a good education and am hardworking. I also play the violin, which would make it fine and more congenial all around, as you could play as she sings."

"I see she says she wants to buy a husband. She don't got to buy me. If she gives me $1,000 to pay off my land I don't ask no more from her. I got a nice three-room house and would build another room if I got married. I would have a good home and could travel."

PROHIBITIONISTS TO WAIT

The submission of an amendment to the constitution to provide national prohibition will not be pressed during the coming special session of Congress, so far as the organized agencies of the Methodist Episcopal Church are concerned, says the Rev. Clarence True Wilson, D. D., its general secretary. Prohibitionists, he says, are not disposed to nag at a time when men of all opinions should concentrate on problems of the national defense and the organization of the national industries to meet the strains of war.

GUNSTON SCHOOL GIRLS HOLD CHARITY BAZAAR

Aid Associated Charities, War Relief and Church Missions.

A grand bazaar for the purpose of raising funds to assist the work of the Associated Charities, war relief organizations and various church missions, was held last afternoon and evening by the young ladies of the Gunston Hall School, at the school building, 1906 Florida avenue northwest.

The school hopes to raise between $500 and $600, through the sale of fancy articles, flowers and refreshments.

A vaudeville performance, under the direction of Miss Ella Rouse, a teacher in the school, was staged by Miss Mary Ellen Marshall, of Arkansas, Miss Helen Hutchinson, of Louisiana, Miss Ruth Hanson, of New Orleans and several little girls from the primary department.

The tables and booths were tended by the students. Miss Virginia Southgate of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Beattie Coblenz had in charge the fancy work table; Miss Georgina Costello, of Quincy, Ill., and Miss Adrielle Low, the art table; Miss Jesse Garrison, of Houston, Tex., and Miss Mary Ruffin, of North Carolina, the flower table; Miss Emmie Norzwell, of Lynchburg, Va., and Miss Virginia Thigpen, the candy table; Miss Celestina Garcia, of New York, and Miss Kathleen Blakeley, of Houston, Tex., the punch table; Miss Frances Boersen, of Denver, Col., and Miss Elizabeth Jackson, the ice cream booth, and Miss Ellen Martin, of Arkansas, and Miss Louise McLoughlin, cake table. The children of the primary department, with the aid of their teachers, tended a table for fancy work and candy.

Music was furnished by the young ladies of the school under the direction of Miss Florence Boatwright, of Danville, Va. The general bazaar was under the direction of Miss Edith Clark, associate principal of the school.

MERCHANTS WILL BEGIN DRIVE ON BAD CHECKS

A bad-check drive will be undertaken by the Retail Merchants' Association Monday morning, according to an announcement made yesterday by Secretary Charles J. Columbus.

"The merchants of Washington are urged to turn over to the association all bad checks in their possession," he said, "and in the event that they are found to be unusable through moral suasion, we are going to take them in the hands of Assistant United States Attorney Ralph Given at Police Court."

"District Attorney Laskey and his assistant, Mr. Given, are co-operating in this movement and are proceeding with the prosecution of bad-check cases just as quickly as the exigencies of the great mass of business at Police Court will permit. A number of cases have been set for next week."

MARINE DRAFTSMEN MEET

Elect New Members—Hear Talk on Border Experiences.

The March meeting of the Washington Navy Yard Branch of the American Society of Marine Draftsmen was held in the Northeast Masonic Temple, Eighth and F streets northeast, Thursday evening.

W. E. Rose, chairman of the government section of the economic committee, was elected delegate to the annual meeting of the society to be held in New London, Conn., April 29 and 30. It has been the custom of this branch to send two delegates to the annual convention of the society, but inasmuch as the president, G. W. Wusdom, will preside over the convention in his capacity as national president, it was deemed sufficient to send only one delegate.

The following were elected to membership in the branch: Junior members—William I. Earnshaw, George E. Eckendorff, Joseph F. Heeking and Paul G. Wienn; associate members—J. J. Fairchild and H. G. Clay, member—M. E. Taylor.

Capt. H. C. Earnshaw, of the Third Infantry, N. G. D. C., who has just returned from the border, gave some interesting experiences of his tour of duty.

To Try Alleged Handbook Men.

Arraignment of the eight men indicted by the grand jury for handbook making has been set for Criminal Division No. 1 of the District Supreme Court for Friday morning.

The men indicted are: Fred H. Vogt, Lee Hammersley, Samuel Sondheimler, Frank McCormack, Stanley Johnson, Pete Shore, Harry Turner, and Bayard T. Wrenn, otherwise known as Bert Wrenn.

The grand jury is continuing its investigation of the handbook charges against several other men, arrested in the recent raid of the Department of Justice agents and the Washington police.

URGE BETTER ROADS AS PREPAREDNESS AID

Government Plans to Spend $150,000,000 on Highways.

Officials of the government, fully realizing the important part which good roads would play in war times, are anxiously watching the progress of the Federal aid road act, which was signed by President Wilson last July 11.

In substance this act provides that an appropriation of $75,000,000 be set aside on the part of the Federal government for the construction of rural post roads while the States are to co-operate in providing a like fund. Thus, it is planned within the next five years to expend on such roads $150,000,000.

For instance the first year's appropriation in the plan calling for $5,000 is apportioned, according to size, among the several States. Maryland is scheduled to put up for this purpose for the 1917 $44,047.22, the government to give her a like sum, making a total of $88,094.44 to be used in good road construction for that State. Virginia, it is planned, will contribute $39,007.71, which, added to the Federal help, makes $78,015.42.

While these good road extensions are being made primarily for agricultural purposes and in other peaceful interests, in view of the present critical conditions some study is now being made of what practical use they could be put to in the interest of military preparedness.

Bad Roads Expensive.

David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, under whose supervision the extension of good roads comes, in an article commenting on the Federal aid act, said: "There is no need of discussing the importance of good roads. They are essential to comfortable travel, to the economic production and distribution of farm products, to the development especially of satisfactory rural schools, and to the improvement of the social life of the nation. Bad roads are very expensive possessions. It is estimated that it costs 25 cents under existing conditions to haul a mile on the average country road and only 12 cents on a properly improved road, that this is not all the story."

"The direct cost is very great and the indirect costs are possibly even greater. With bad roads the farmer is compelled to haul when he should be engaged in other activities, while with good roads he can plan his operations without reference to the weather. The States and the local units, as has been intimated, has strikingly recognized these truths by greatly increasing their appropriations for the building of better machinery."

"At the present time roads on the Pacific Coast, or, in other words, roads which would be of particular use for effective military preparedness on the Pacific Coast, are in first-class condition," according to M. O. Eldridge, assistant in the road economics division of the office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering.

Roads in California.

"Roads in California," Mr. Eldridge said last night, "are in as good shape as those in any other State in the Union. There is one trunk road, in excellent condition, which runs all the way from Southern California up through Oregon. Then, of course, there are numerous smaller roads which branch out from it."

"Nevertheless, I regret to say that there is a mileage of unsurfaced roads in the United States, if laid out in a straight line, would be sufficient to girdle the earth at the equator more than eighty times, while the surfaced roads would girdle the earth only twenty times."

"In 1904 less than $50,000,000 per annum was expended on road building and maintenance, while the expenditure in 1914 amounted to approximately $50,000,000 per annum. This increase shows marked improvement, and I am glad to say that at the end of the five-year construction program provided for under the Federal Aid Act, the United States will be 'well fixed' for roads."

On Wednesday evening Mr. Eldridge will lecture at the Young Men's Christian Association on "Road Building in the United States," taking up in a general way the history and progress of road-building in the United States. He will illustrate his lecture with slides.

GEORGETOWN MEN MAKE COMMENCEMENT PLANS

Plans for commencement week at Georgetown University were made at a recent meeting of the executive committee and class secretaries. Rev. A. J. Donlon, S. J., the rector of the university, announced that the following events would take place during commencement week: Smoker, Saturday night, June 9; baccalaureate sermon, Sunday, June 10; singing in the quadrangle, Sunday night, June 10; laying of cornerstone with Preparatory School, Monday afternoon, June 11; graduation exercises, Tuesday afternoon, June 12. Committees chosen from the class secretaries were appointed to make arrangements for each of these events.

Tentative plans for conducting a pilgrimage to St. Mary's City, the first settlement in Maryland, were considered and a committee was appointed to inquire into the suggestion and report at the next meeting. The class secretaries also discussed the feasibility of organizing the Georgetown Alumni in Washington into a Washington club.

BULGAR TROOPS MUTINY

London, March 24.—A mutiny has broken out among the Bulgarian army lying north of Monastir in Macedonia. It is reported in dispatches from Serbian headquarters in the Balkans.

According to the advices, several regiments of Bulgars deserted owing to the restrictions and severity of German officers.

PLAN SEMI-CENTENNIAL

Representative Horace M. Towner will be the orator at the Semi-Centennial of the Carson Post Wednesday evening. The President and Secretaries of War and Navy will be invited to attend.

A presentation will be made to Commander Duncan, Ryan and McDowell, who carried the banner inscribed "G. A. R. Ready for Duty" up Pennsylvania avenue in the inaugural parade. Paul Peters, violinist, will play. Past Commander Slaybaugh will give a history of the post, and Mrs. Isabel Worrell Ball will recite.

ORATORIO SOCIETY SEEKING RECRUITS

Members Preparing for Spring Festival Concerts at Central High.

An increase in the number of enrollments at the last rehearsal of the Washington Oratorio Society marked the beginning of its spring membership campaign. Those desiring to avail themselves of the chorus at the rehearsals are invited to join with the chorus at its weekly rehearsals in the auditorium of the Wilson Normal School, at 8 o'clock Monday evening.

L. E. Hyatt, Walter A. Gawler and Jarvis Butler have been elected to the board of managers of the society.

The other members of the board of managers are Henry H. Freeman, chairman; May Atchison, secretary; Robert McP. Milars, treasurer; George A. Frost, George F. Tucker and Zell Weaver Jayne.

The board is considering the selection of soloists to participate in the spring festival rendition of Handel's "Samson" on one evening, and "Fair Ellen," by Strick and Standford's "Phauidrig Croon" on the second evening, both concerts to be given in the spacious auditorium of the new Central High School.

Dr. Hamlin E. Cogswell, director of the chorus staffs that the progress of the chorus during the winter rehearsals has produced excellent results.

The appreciation of the work of the society has been so encouraging, it is said, that the Oratorio Society probably will make the initiative in proposing at some future time a music festival, or carnival, not unlike the well-known festival of music of Cincinnati, and the periodical musical associations of other cities.
